

AHAD A BAIG

My name is Ahad A Baig, and I'm a 3rd-year Computer Science student with a minor in Management Information Systems at UNBC. I'm honored to be a recipient of the Raven Scholarship (2023-2024), awarded for academic excellence, leadership, and commitment to social justice.

I've been actively involved in student leadership, academic support, and research at UNBC. I previously served as VP External Outreach for the NISA SLO and as a Project Lead for Student Energy SLO, where we worked on sustainability initiatives and student engagement. I was also part of JDC West 2023-2024, competing alongside top students from across Western Canada in the Business Technology category.

Beyond leadership, I've contributed to the academic community as a Research Assistant at the UNBC Robotics Lab, where we work on enhancing Human-Robot Interaction to improve accessibility. Additionally, over the past two years, I've served as a Student Assistant for Math 100 and CPSC 260, collaborating with instructors, facilitating discussions, and providing feedback to help students.

As students, we experience academic policies firsthand. I want to make sure our concerns are heard and that policies work for us through this position. As an international student, I understand the unique challenges we face, and I will work to ensure international students have a stronger voice in academic decisions. I'm excited to bring fresh ideas, and represent student concerns at the Senate.

Vote for me, and I will ensure our voices heard where they matter most!

DIVJOT KAUR

As a 3rd-year psychology major and an international student at UNBC, I am passionate about fostering an inclusive, supportive, and thriving campus community. My volunteer work with Green Day and orientation ceremonies has allowed me to welcome and assist students, ensuring they feel a sense of belonging at our university. My contributions to Northern Health have strengthened my commitment to mental health advocacy and well-being, values that align with UNBC's dedication to community health and sustainability. Additionally, my involvement with SASA, Jack.org, and SGU reflects my commitment to leadership, student advocacy, sustainability, and cross-cultural engagement.

I am eager to serve on the Senate to ensure that students' voices are heard and that policies reflect our diverse needs and experiences. UNBC's motto, "En Cha Huná"—"He/she/they also live"—resonates with my belief that every student's well-being, success, and inclusion matter. My strong communication skills have been instrumental in advocating for student concerns, facilitating discussions, and fostering collaboration among diverse groups.

Through my experience serving on the executive board of various clubs, I have developed leadership, organizational, and problem-solving skills that enable me to take initiative and drive meaningful change. Through effective dialogue and engagement, I aim to enhance student mental health resources, create more opportunities for involvement, and support initiatives that make our university experience enriching and empowering for all. If elected, I will work towards a more connected, student-centered UNBC where everyone feels valued and supported.

SHAHBAZ (AZAN) ALI

I am a second-year Bachelor of Commerce student at UNBC, specializing in Finance and Management Information Systems. My experiences at UNBC have deepened my commitment to our university's values of academic excellence and innovation. Through active participation in collaborative projects and leadership roles on campus, I have developed strong strategic thinking and problem-solving skills that are essential for fostering a dynamic and forward-thinking academic community.

In addition to my academic pursuits, I have dedicated considerable time to community service. I have volunteered with organizations supporting underprivileged and homeless individuals, and I have participated in various initiatives such as local food drives, environmental cleanups, and outreach programs. These experiences have reinforced my commitment to social responsibility and community engagement—values that align with UNBC's mission to create a positive impact both on and off campus. I am motivated to serve on the Board of Governors to bridge academic innovation with proactive community involvement, and I envision a board that champions initiatives aimed at enhancing student well-being and community resilience.
